Averaging 35,000 unique users per month, the court's website is a centralized resource for attorneys, parties, and the public with information about cases, local rules, judges, and latest court news.

While website functions and content subcategories remain largely the same, the new design offers a cleaner look and aims to more efficiently direct users by category with an improved menu at the site's home page.

The court welcomes any suggested website improvements from its many users.
